OVERVIEW

Evan C. Saint Cloud is an Associate focusing primarily on commercial litigation, insurance coverage, and cyber security & data privacy matters. She regularly provides counsel to clients on professional liability, directors' and officers' liability, and general commercial liability issues and works diligently to obtain the best possible resolution for her clients.

Evan's experience includes both domestic and international clients involved in complex insurance and commercial disputes, and she enjoys reading and writing about national trends and developments in commercial litigation, BIPA disputes, and cyber security matters. She has participated in federal and state court trials and mediations and applies her skills and knowledge to various complex coverage and liability matters. Evan also draws on experience as a mediator at the Chicago Center for Conflict Resolution. Prior to joining Walker Wilcox, Evan gained experience at several Chicago based defense firms.

Evan earned her J.D. from Loyola University of Chicago, School of Law, earning a CALI Award, participating as a competitor and Captain of the Civil Mock Trial Team, and publishing and serving as Editor in Chief for the International Law Review. Evan continues to teach at Loyola as an Adjunct Professor of the Civil Litigation Mock Trial Team.
